INTRODUCTION

Cláudia de Freitas is Associate Researcher at the Institute of Public Health of the University of Porto (ISPUP). Between 2016 and 2017, she was a Postdoctoral Research Fellow at ISPUP and at the Centre for Research and Studies in Sociology of the University Institute of Lisbon (ISCTE-IUL), and before that she held a Postdoctoral Research Fellowship at ISCTE-IUL (2012-2016). Both Postdoctoral Fellowships were obtained through participation in competitive calls launched by the Foundation for Science and Technology. In 2015, De Freitas was a visiting scholar at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. She holds a degree in Clinical Psychology from the University of Coimbra (2001), a Master of Arts in Migration and Ethnic Studies from the University of Amsterdam (2004) and a PhD in Social Sciences from Utrecht University (2011).

De Freitas is Invited Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Porto, where she lectures in the PhD Programme in Public Health and in the Master in Public Health. She also teaches on the Specialisation Course in Public Health for medical doctors specialising in Public Health at ISPUP and she is a guest lecturer at the University of Seville, where she teaches in the Master in International Migration, Health and Wellbeing.

De Freitas has participated in several national and international research projects and networks funded by the Foundation for Science and Technology, the European Commission, the European Refugee Fund and the Open Society Foundations. Her main research fields are public and patient participation in health decision-making and migration and health. She is especially interested in the study of lay citizens' involvement in the governance of health policy, care and research aimed at adapting health care systems to diversity. Her scientific work has been awarded several prizes by the Norwegian Medical Council, ISCTE-IUL and the University of Amsterdam.
